FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Biodex is Presenting its Arsenal to Support the Fight Against Cancer

Leader in nuclear medicine and molecular imaging solutions, Biodex is providing a comprehensive approach for current and future theranostics and targeted therapies. Their wide range of products is solving the daily challenges of cancer diagnosis and treatment management in academic, research, industry and clinical settings across the globe.

May 29, Shirley NY – According to the International Agency for Research on Cancer of the World Health Organization, the number of incident cases of cancer exceeded 18 million in 2018 and could potentially double by 2040. With a gigantic economic impact (total annual cost of cancer in 2010 reaching an approximate US $1.16 trillion) and strain on the healthcare space, Biodex is determined to streamline, facilitate and expand the use of theranostics and other radionuclide therapies having a direct impact on patient outcome.

The fastest growing vertical in nuclear medicine and molecular imaging is generating a true revolution with dozens of new promising agents available now and in the near future. Therapeutic doses require cautious handling and high quality standards of practice. The medical devices that Biodex manufactures and distributes comply to the highest requirements and regulations worldwide. Their goal is to support the industry in these exciting times for nuclear medicine and molecular imaging with a direct impact on cancer treatment.

“Biodex offers standard and custom-made products for the fabrication, transportation, manipulation, preparation and administration of theranostics to ensure safety throughout the treatment continuum,” explains Frank Hebert, Global Vice President of Sales. “We have the reputation, recognition and expertise to provide customers with the support and confidence to address their challenges,” he points out.

Custom lead-lined laboratory furniture, shielding and storage, theranostics shipping/transportation systems, treatment administration pumps, shielded isolators, dose calibrators, wipe test counters, radiopharmacy and hot lab products, sources, calibration phantoms, radiation detection, decontamination, imaging accessories are available directly or through our network of distribution partners.
